DESNA VALLEY

Repairing the chapel

We began with repairing the chapel in Pekařov in the Desná-valley area today.

Twenty-four of us were divided into six groups and each of us got its own work. I and six others were for example digging the ground in the cellar to make it deeper. Of course, girls were doing easier things such as tiding the area beside the chapel.

In the morning there was also presentation of Indians in local basic school. Pupils were quite shy in the begging but they started to ask some questions by the time. Uma, our Indian friend, taught them Indian song and dances.

In the afternoon ninety percent of us went to the Velké Losiny town and played some games. The rest of the group was working on their own projects.

Through the afternoon we went without any corruptions and we also had quite interesting experience. It was when the Hungarian girls showed their dances.
