Day 6

PROMOTING YOUTH-ADULT CO-MANAGEMENT

- Wake up England! Youth have arrived!

Preview on what's happening next

So what did we learn from our week promoting our Co-management Booklet around the UK?

Yesterday, Marc Ludwig, Joao Scarpelini, David Woollcombe and Sylvain Chevalier gathered in the White House stables to reflect on what we learned, and what we might do now, going forward.

Joao: I think there are many next steps: this week, our focus has been on the UK, but now we have to think about how we support each other to promote the booklet across Europe. There will be a meeting in Brussels where the booklet will be shown to every member of the European Union.

Joao: Just doing interviews on Faith in Europe is not so interesting, but if we link it to promoting the idea of Co-Management to all the National Youth Organisations and Youth Advisory Boards across Europe – that is very interesting. We should do that.

Sylvian: We also talked about creating a training module and putting it on the web. We all agreed that the pages about training in the booklet are not sufficient.

David: For what we have really learned this week it that we need to do more to promote Co-management.

I also want to say what a brilliant job the guys in Kapfenberg did promoting all our projects. It really is terrific. A much, much more exciting site to visit than GYSD, I thought.

One way how to promote Co-Management:
Co Management – Soon in selected stores.

David: Yes – I'm afraid that our project her in the UK was really boring for them: we should be doing more visual things next time.

Joao: But I want to work with these guys! They are efficient, friendly, fun and their site looks the best!

David: And even Rosey could understand her way around it – and enjoyed it!

ALL: THANK YOU KAPFENBERG GUYS!!!!

We from the MCC want to use this little space to say thank you to all the people in the different countries. Especially the UK project did a really great job in sending us the information in time. Ulli and Michael, United Kingdom desk, MCC
