

Day 4

Ecuador

LEARNING HOW TO RECYCLE

The german volunteers are sharing their impressions with us:

Sophie Burger:

“I have been part of the Greenpeace Youth Group for 3 years now because I am really interested in environmental issues such as the climate change and biodiversity. I love painting, photography and theatre and also practice all of these, so I am very happy to be able to link these interests with work on environmental awareness here in Ecuador.”

“I think kids are the best people to work with because they will keep on doing what they learn today. Their minds are full of ideas and but sometimes they need our support to realize them. “

Fabian Eck:

“When I took part in the Student Days One World 2004 and 2005 as one of the organizers, it was because I wanted to spread awareness about sustainability among the students. Now I want to not only know about it, but also experience life in another country.”

“Here in Ecuador, I have the chance to take action with kids who have backgrounds totally different from German pupils. Working with them is a great opportunity for me to get into a different culture and enlarge my horizon.”
